

Performing Arts & Media

How Arts Change the Learning Experience

- Provide direct involvement with the material
- Allow authentic collaboration with others
- Encourage self-directed learning
- Promote complexity in the learning process
- Develop self-confidence
- Explore and develop individual talents and passions

Changing the Learning Experience

Arts education provides youth with the holistic learning experiences that engage their minds, hearts, and bodies. These learning experiences are real and impactful for the students that participate in any of our Performing Arts & Media programs, where involvement fosters the development of multiple skills and abilities. Engagement in the arts, whether dance, music, theatre, or other disciplines, nurtures the development of cognitive, social, and personal competencies.

The Department of Arts & Media has developed a four-year multidisciplinary curriculum, which attracts and serves students interested in pursuing a higher education in the arts.

Arts & Media courses are offered in the following disciplines:

- Broadcast Journalism
- Choral Music
- Dance
- Film & Television
- Instrumental Music
- Theatre/Drama